Hashima (Gunkanjima) is a tiny island with a seabed coalmine. The island is surrounded by a sea wall, and has multi-story reinforced concrete apartments, giving it the appearance of the warship Tosa. For this reason it has become known as 'Gunkanjima' (Battleship Island). The Hashima Coal Mine lay dormant for many years after its closure. However, in 2015 the Hashima Coal Mine was registered as a component part of the UNESCO World Heritage Site, 'Sites of Japan's Meiji Industrial Revolution: Iron and Steel, Shipbuilding and Coal Mining'.
